

10 – 20 AUGUST

The official language in Poland is Polish.

Some inhabitants of the Silesian Voivodeship use the local dialect.

Many Poles (and most under 30) communicate in English.

Many older inhabitants of the region know basic phrases in German and Russian.

MONEY

In many places you can easily find ATM 's that accept cards from the largest payment systems in the world, such as Visa, MasterCard or Maestro. However, some financial institutions may charge a commission and other fees for using their ATMs. In Poland, on the other hand, non-cash transactions are very common - in most commercial establishments you can pay with cards, also contactless. Many ATMs and shops also allow payments using the BLIK system.

There is a VAT tax in Poland. 23% is the basic rate for goods and services. Some goods and services are tax-reduced (for example, basic foodstuffs and books). VAT is included in the price on the label of each product and there is no need to calculate it before purchasing.

Shops in Poland are closed on Sundays and on holidays, except for gas stations and small shops operated by the owners.
